

The first global auditable innovation management standard is coming – are you ready?

In 2024, the first global auditable innovation management standard (ISO 56001) will launch. If you're an organisation who wants a strategic advantage, you'll need to start preparing quickly to be ready...

ISO 56002 is a document that contains some informative tips and elements to assist your preparations for ISO 56001 when it launches, including:

Allowing for innovation

Do you have the required support and resources to enable innovation?

To enable innovation, the Innovation Management System should provide adequate support, including:

1. Correctly determined and assigned resources, to successfully implement, maintain and improve the IMS.
2. Your people are crucial for innovation success and should be trained for the effective implementation and operation of your IMS.
3. A determined and maintained infrastructure.
4. Decided and defined financial resources.
5. The correct competencies, such as strategic, operational, and technical.
6. Staff should have an awareness of the innovation strategy and vision, as well as their own responsibilities.
7. Established internal and external channels and ways of communication.
8. Policies and procedures to ensure that information is documented.
9. Tools and methods.
10. An approach for the management of strategic intelligence management. E.g. Identifying new business opportunities.
11. Intellectual property management.

We are here to help you can work with you to develop the structure of your innovation management system, to help you thrive against the competition.

Get in touch today to find out more.